Senior Class Is Guest Of Association; Professor Reynolds Given Token Of Esteem.

In appreciation of the thirty-one years of service which she gave to the Gettysburg High School, members of the alumni association of that school presented Miss Helen L. Cope, former principal of the schools of Gettysburg, a diamond ring, at their twenty-fourth annual banquet Tuesday evening in the Eagle Hotel. With the diamond, which was set in white gold, name cards of all alumni who gave contributions toward the purchase of the ring, all attached to a red ribbon several yards long, and a resolution expressing appreciation of her work in the schools and making her an honorary member and president emeritus of the association were given to Miss Cope, who has resigned as teacher in the high school.

The class of 1913, with Mrs. C. W. Baker as its spokesman, gave Miss Cope a black leather hand-bag, and a small gold pen knife to W. D. Reynolds, principal of the Gettysburg schools, who has resigned from the local high school faculty to go to Sunbury in the fall.

One hundred and eighty-four alumni attended the banquet, the largest affair of its kind in the history of the association.

After a four-course dinner, President Charles C. Culp called the meeting to order. In his address of welcome to the class of 1926, which numbers 74 members, who were guests of the association at the banquet, Mr. Culp asked for the cooperation of the graduating class, stressing the point that the alumni organization can only succeed in the degree to which its members work for its benefit.

Senior Leader Responds

John Mumper, president of this year's class, responded and pledged the support of his class to the association. He also called upon his classmates to give a rising vote of thanks for the evening's festivities.

The business meeting followed in which the president gave his report. He stated that during the year three business meetings were called, to discuss plans for the Christmas dance, the alumni play given last month and last night's banquet. Mr. Culp declared all meetings were not attended well, but that he always received the support he desired.

Then followed the secretary's report by Miss Dorothy E. Crouse, treasurer's report by C. William Troxell, statistician's report by Miss Helen Spangler, who stated that the association had the names of 880 graduates, and the addresses of 826 of these. Thirty-four have died, and eleven are unaccounted for. William Weaver gave a report of the dance committee, and Luther McDonnell for the play and nomination committees. All old officers, with the exception of Paul Reaser, '25, vice president, whose place was taken by John Mumper '26, had been nominated. All were re-elected by acclamation. Combined Vote of York and Adams County Is Finally Computed.

The consolidated return in the 22nd congressional district, York and Adams counties, of the vote cast at the recent primary election was computed Tuesday by R. E. Rohrbaugh, return judge for Adams county, and Samuel Hovis, return judge for York county. The computation was made in the office of the York county commissioners.

The total vote received by Franklin Menges for the Republican nomination as a candidate for representative in Congress, in both counties, is 11,203, according to the returns. His opponent, Mayor E. S. Hugentugler, had 3,006 votes.

Adams county gave Menges 2,739 votes, and Hugentugler, 679. York county gave the former 8,464 votes and the latter 2,327 votes.

Samuel F. Glatfelter, unopposed for the Democratic congressional nomination, received 6,649 votes in both counties. Fifty-five Democrats in the district wrote the name of Franklin Menges on their ballots, indicating their preference for him as a congressional candidate. Others to receive one vote each were: John Stover, Harry Washers, Felix Bentzel, E. S. Hugentugler, William Menges. Frank Menges received 2 votes.

Glatfelter had 5,243 votes in York county and 1,406 votes in Adams county.

Congressman Franklin Menges is also the Prohibition party nominee for that office in this district. He received a total of 14 votes in both counties. Samuel F. Glatfelter received 6 votes and Samuel Glatfelter, one vote for this party nomination.

Others whose names were written on the Republican ballots for the congressional nomination and the number of votes each received are as follows: Henry Lanius, 1; W. H. Galbreath, 2; Samuel F. Glatfelter, 26; Mrs. William Stubbs, 1; John King, 1.

POST OFFICE IS NOW FIRST CLASS

Advancement Will Take Place After July 1; Yearly Business Is Now Over $11,000.

With receipts for 1925 totaling nearly $41,000, the Gettysburg post office will be advanced to a first class rating on July 1, it was announced today at the post office department, Washington.

Gettysburg's office had first class rating in 1918 and 1919, when cantonments here boosted postal receipts to the unprecedented level of $65,000 for 1918 alone. After July 1, 1920, however, the office returned to its second class status.

A first class rating will increase the salary of Postmaster Robert C. Miller from $3,000 to $3,200 a year, and of Assistant Postmaster George P. Black from $2,500 to $2,600 a year.

Little change is expected to go with the increased rating of the local office, according to authorities there. Postal regulations provide for a superintendent of mails for first class offices, but whether such an official will be appointed here is still undetermined.

Increases in postal rates on April 1, last year, were responsible for the local post office securing its increased rating this year, although the receipts had been mounting at such a rate that, irrespective of the increased postage rates last year, the office would have attained first class honors in 1927.

The local office moved from third to second class in 1898.

Mr. Miller was named acting postmaster here on April 1, 1923, succeeding Charles S. Duncan, and received his permanent appointment February 1, 1924.

W. M. Announces Summer Schedule

A summer schedule for passenger trains on the local division of the Western Maryland railroad will go into effect June 6. Only minor changes in the departure of trains are noted.

On week-days, the eastbound passenger trains will leave at 8:25 a. m. and 4:32 p. m., instead of 8:31 a. m. and 4:41 p. m. as at present, while the westbound trains will leave at 9:50 a. m. and 5:57 p. m. instead of 9:41 a. m. and 6:06 p. m. as at present.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL PUPILS PRESENT PRETTY OPERETTA

Sixty-Six Eighth Grade Students Get Certificates For Admission Into High School.

Gettysburg's new high school auditorium was used for the first time, Tuesday evening, when the grammar school commencement was held there in the presence of 500 persons, who expressed astonishment at the size and appointments of the new building.

Sixty-six boys and girls were given certificates of promotion at the exercises, after which the youthful graduates gave the operetta "Hiawatha's Childhood," under the direction of Miss Anna Smith, supervisor of music, and Miss Elizabeth Rummell, principal at the Meade building.

The commencement address was given by the Rev. N. L. Horn, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. He admonished the graduates to have faith, to be ambitious and to have courage. "Trust in God, see all and be not afraid" was the theme of the minister's remarks. The Rev. Mr. Horn also gave the invocation and the benediction.

Prizes Are Awarded

Walter D. Reynolds, supervising principal of the Gettysburg schools, awarded the certificates of promotion and the prizes. The eighth grade prize winners were: Anne Keet and Geraldine Hartzell, each with an average of 93.3; Charles Wolf, 95.3; Albert Bell, 91.1, and George Bushman, 91. Honorable mention for standing of girls was given to Ruth Weaver with an average of 91.2.

Helen Butt won the eighth grade spelling prize with an average of 99.7. Seventh grade spelling prizes were awarded to Helen Conover, Edith McClear and Dorothy Voorhees, each with an average of 100 per cent.

Musical numbers included songs by the graduating class and music by the high school orchestra.

"Hiawatha's Childhood" proved to be a delightful and entertaining operetta, with the youthful actors and actresses taking their parts "like veterans." Indian costumes and a woodland setting, with an Indian wigwam, added to the success of the performance.

Give Operetta

While every member of the graduating class was represented in the chorus of the operetta, leading parts were taken by Harvey Dickert, as "Hiawatha, the child"; Nevin Eiker, as "Hiawatha, the youth"; Martha Stallsmith, "Mudjekeewis, West Wind"; Mindelle Sachs, "Nakomus"; Harold Rummell, as "Iagoo"; Charles (Continued on Second Page.)

York Assembly Of K. Of C. To Meet

York Assembly of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, with headquarters in York, will hold its regular June meeting at St. Francis Xavier hall, this evening. A feature of the meeting will be an address by the Rev. Joseph J. McAndrew, director of Mt. St. Mary's Seminary, Emmitsburg.

Arrangements for the meeting are in charge of the four local members of York Assembly, the Rev. Father Mark E. Stock, Peter C. Stock, Joseph A. Maguire, and Edgar Paul Hamilton.

Graduates and Is Wed All Within Seven Hours

Seven hours after her graduation from Irving College, Mechanicsburg, Miss Elizabeth Louise Bailey, of Parkersburg, West Virginia, became the bride of William H. B. Stevens, of Coatesville, at a picturesque ceremony performed at the Sigma Chi house, Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock. Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg College, read the ring ceremony of the Lutheran church.

Parents of the bride and fraternity brothers of Stevens witnessed the ceremony. The marriage license was procured in Harrisburg, after Miss Bailey graduated from Irving at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning.

CATHOLIC LEAGUE TO HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION HERE

Local Members of Beneficial Organization Are Named Officers At State Meeting.

A large delegation from Father Corby and Queen of Peace Councils, Gettysburg, of the Pennsylvania Catholic Beneficial League, attended the twenty-sixth annual convention of the league at Lebanon, Tuesday.

Gettysburg was unanimously chosen for the 1927 convention city, and from 150 to 200 men and women are expected here next June when sessions will be held at St. Francis Xavier hall, West High street.

Included in the state officers elected for the ensuing year at Lebanon were Edgar P. Hamilton and Charles E. Swisher, both of Gettysburg, the former named grand marshal, and the latter, grand guard.

Prominent Organization

Besides Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Swisher, other local residents who attended the meeting Tuesday were John E. Storm, J. Donald Dillman and Francis Redding, of Father Corby council, and Mrs. Nicholas Redding, Miss Mary Ramer, Mrs. Wilbur Stallsmith, Mrs. Charles R. Zhea, Mrs. John Zhea, Miss Rose Smith, Miss Virginia Ramer, Mrs. Simon Redding, Mrs. Ida Dillman and Mrs. Harvey Althoff, of Queen of Peace council.

The Pennsylvania Catholic Beneficial League is one of the most prominent Catholic insurance societies in the Harrisburg diocese. Its headquarters are in Lancaster.

The financial report of grand officers and directors showed an unprecedented growth in reserve and mortuary funds. Of particular interest to local members was the revision of the benefit fund laws whereby increased insurance may be taken out on the same schedule of rates in existence since the incorporation of the league 26 years ago. The financial reports also showed that the income from investments was more than twice the amount necessary to pay death losses during the past year.

RE-ARRESTED FOR POSSESSING RUM

After being given a hearing on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Tuesday evening, another charge of illegally possessing liquor was laid against Charles Cullison, Biglerville Route 2, by state and local police. Cullison was arrested last Saturday night at the corner of Chambersburg and Washington streets here.

At the time of his arrest, Cullison had two pint bottles of alleged liquor on him, and the contents of these have been analyzed and found to contain about 8 per cent of alcohol, according to state police.

Cullison was given a hearing on the drunkenness and disorderly count before Justice J. U. Applier Tuesday evening, and fined $5. Costs in the sum of $10.50 also were assessed against him. At the conclusion of the hearing, Cullison was rearrested for violation of the liquor laws. He furnished $500 bail for court.

COUNCIL MEETING

The regular June meeting of town council will be held Friday evening, June 4, at 7:30 o'clock at the engine house.

$10,000 in Bonds and Notes is Stolen From East Berlin Warehouse

Liberty Bond, Bank Stock and Promissory Notes Are Taken From Safe, Door of Which Had Been Left Open; Second Establishment Is Also Entered But Nothing Stolen; Police Investigate.

Stocks, bonds and promissory notes, valued at nearly $10,000, were stolen from the safe in the warehouse of D. E. Brandt, East Berlin, during the night.

Included in the loot were $1,500 worth of unregistered United States Liberty bonds; $500 worth of the capital stock of the East Berlin National Bank, having a market value in excess of $2,000, and approximately $5,000 worth of promissory notes. Eighteen dollars in cash also was taken.

Through oversight, the main door of the warehouse safe was left unlocked when the place was closed between 7 and 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, and the thief or thieves had only to force two small inner drawers to reach the valuable securities.

NORTHERN LIGHTS WERE ON DISPLAY

Single Beam Is Witnessed by Local Residents Tuesday Night; Takes Off Form.

Gettysburg last night witnessed one of the most unusual forms of the Aurora Borealis when at about 9 o'clock there appeared in the heavens from the northwest a steady flood of light that appeared to be a beam shot from a gigantic searchlight.

The phenomenon was evident for about an hour and a half, at 10:30 o'clock being barely visible.

The display was different from the usual display of the Northern Lights in that it was a steady glow and was made up of virtually one beam. The Northern Lights as seen here before have invariably flickered and have been made up of a number of rays.

The display, according to dispatches from the Associated Press, was evident in other parts of the state and students of astronomy advanced many theories as to the cause of its peculiar form.

Only Portion Visible Here

One of several explanations of the phenomenon advanced by students of advanced physics and astronomy was that, as the beams radiate from a more or less central point, it is possible that the beam seen here was only a part of the Northern Lights, the eastern edge.

The steady nature of the light remains a puzzle to all the astronomers and no one advanced an explanation last night.

Weather bureau officials at Harrisburg advanced the theory that clouds were responsible. On the other hand amateur astronomers of Reading, Pa. (Continued on Second Page)

14 TO GRADUATE AT ARENDTSTVILLE

Commencement Exercises Will be Held on Thursday and Friday Evenings.

With a graduating class of 14, the annual commencement exercises of the Arendtsville Vocational School will be held Thursday and Friday evenings.

The class day exercises will be held in the school auditorium on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The chief features of the evening's program will be the class prophecy, the class will, the president's address and the musical program by members of the class.

On Friday evening the graduation exercises will be held in the Lutheran church. Dr. T. L. Cline, head of the English department at Gettysburg College, will deliver the address to the class. Those members of the class who have done meritorious work during the past year will receive awards.

The honor students are: Verna Heckenluber, Helen Lower, Noel Taylor, William Sadler, Arnold Orner and Clyde McCauslin. Besides these the other members of the class are Kathryn Durborow, Evelyn Orner, Alma Wert, Bernice Myers, Willis Waybright, Arthur Shybaugh, Paul Bittinger and Edward Staub.

Practically all members of the class will go to higher schools of learning in the fall.

INJURED MAN LEAVES HOSPITAL

James Brown, New Oxford, R. D., whose skull was fractured several weeks ago when an automobile fan blade struck him in the forehead, was discharged from the Warner Hospital, Tuesday afternoon. He has full recovered, according to hospital authorities.

Martha Lentz, McKnightstown, was admitted as a patient.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED

A decree of absolute divorce was granted today to Edward C. Freed from Anna R. Freed in the court of common pleas today. Mr. Freed, the libellant, is a resident of Gettysburg, and alleged desertion in securing the divorce. William Hersh represented Mr. Freed.

$10,000 in Bonds and Notes is Stolen From East Berlin Warehouse

Liberty Bond, Bank Stock and Promissory Notes Are Taken From Safe, Door of Which Had Been Left Open; Second Establishment Is Also Entered But Nothing Stolen; Police Investigate.

Stocks, bonds and promissory notes, valued at nearly $10,000, were stolen from the safe in the warehouse of D. E. Brandt, East Berlin, during the night.

Included in the loot were $1,500 worth of unregistered United States Liberty bonds; $500 worth of the capital stock of the East Berlin National Bank, having a market value in excess of $2,000, and approximately $5,000 worth of promissory notes. Eighteen dollars in cash also was taken.

Through oversight, the main door of the warehouse safe was left unlocked when the place was closed between 7 and 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, and the thief or thieves had only to force two small inner drawers to reach the valuable securities.

Entrance to the warehouse was effected through a rear window. Panes were broken by the intruders and the latch released, allowing the window to be raised. The robbers apparently left the place through the window, for it was pulled down this morning.

Chief Jesse Crabbs, of Hanover, was first notified of the theft, and made an investigation during the forenoon. Afterward he notified Corporal S. S. Mollenkoff of the local state police substation, and that officer went to East Berlin this afternoon.

Police Find Clues
Important clues are said to have been left by the intruders, who, it is believed in East Berlin, were persons familiar with the Brandt warehouse. It is also presumed that the robbers knew that occasionally Mr. Brandt left the main door of his safe unlocked, and that they waited for such an opportunity before staging the theft.

What clues or suspicions the police hold would not be divulged, except that they were convinced, from their investigation, that the theft was the work of amateurs and persons acquainted with the warehouse and Mr. Brandt's habit of occasionally leaving the safe unlocked.

That local thieves would experience considerable difficulty in disposing of any of the loot obtained, with the possible exception of the Liberty Bonds, appeared more than reasonable to residents of East Berlin.

The Liberty Bonds were unregistered and could easily be taken to a city and disposed of at banks or brokerage offices, but the East Berlin National bank stock is numbered, the shares held by Mr. Brandt being registered at the bank, and endorsed by him.

The promissory judgment notes would be even more difficult to dispose of according to local bankers. (Continued from second page)

POLICE ASKED TO FIND SUITCASE
State police here were asked today to help find a brown suit case left by Leo Collier, of Washington, along the Emmitsburg road, just north of the Mason and Dixon line, Tuesday evening, while he made minor repairs to his automobile.

Driving away from the place, he forgot the suit case, and has asked the state police to assist in recovering it. A substantial reward, according to the state police, will be paid to the person bringing the case to police headquarters here.

14 TO GRADUATE AT ARENDTSTVILLE
Commencement Exercises Will be Held on Thursday and Friday Evenings.

With a graduating class of 14, the annual commencement exercises of the Arendtsville Vocational School will be held Thursday and Friday evenings. The class day exercises will be held in the school auditorium on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The chief features of the evening's program will be the class prophecy, the class will, the president's address and the musical program by members of the class.

On Friday evening the graduation exercises will be held in the Lutheran church. Dr. T. L. Cline, head of the English department at Gettysburg College, will deliver the address to the class. Those members of the class who have done meritorious work during the past year will receive awards.

The honor students are: Verna Heckenluber, Helen Lower, Noel Taylor, William Sadler, Arnold Orner and Clyde McCauslin. Besides these the other members of the class are Kathryn Durbin, Evelyn Orner, Alma Wert, Bernice Myers, Willis Waybright, Arthur Slaybaugh, Paul Bittinger and Edward Staub.

CORONACH WINS EPSOM DERBY

Brokers Clerk Holds Ticket in Calcutta Sweepstakes, Winning $300,000.

Epsom, Eng., June 2.—Lord Woolavington's Coronach won the one hundred and forty-third renewal of the derby blue ribbon classic of British racing here today.

Robert Bishop, 50 year old department manager of a brokerage firm, won the $300,000 first prize in the Calcutta sweepstakes, but he retained only one-eighth of the ticket for himself.

He had sold half his share for about 7,000 pounds and later disposed of three-quarters of the remainder for an unannounced amount.

A London woman, Miss Farr, won about $150,000 in the stock exchange sweepstakes. She heard the news at a motion picture theatre and was overcome.

STOCKS SLUGGISH DURING MORNING

(By Associated Press.) New York, June 2.—Stock prices moved within narrow and irregular limits at the opening of today's market, but reactionary tendencies predominated. The market appeared to be awaiting further light on the course of business before developing a definite trend.

Oils were in fairly better demand. Steel and rail shares were inclined to heaviness. Later brisk rallies were started in several specialties. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent.

BASEBALL MEN ENDORSE FUND

President of Writers' Association Pays Tribute to Leadership of Eddie Plank.

James M. Gould, president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, has heartily endorsed the $125,000 Eddie Plank Memorial Gymnasium project and has pledged the efforts of his organization as well as his own personal influence to the success of the movement.

This information is contained in a letter enclosing an endorsement from Mr. Gould to the secretary of the executive committee of the Plank Memorial committee. "I want to assure you that personally and officially I will do all I can to further the project of an Eddie Plank Memorial," wrote President Gould.

In addition to the endorsement and the pledge of cooperation by President Gould, every member of the Baseball Writers' Association of America is being urged by Mr. Gould to support the project wherever and whenever possible and to exert their influence to the utmost to assure the success of the movement.

The endorsement by President Gould follows:

"On this day it is eminently fitting that this association go on record as heartily endorsing the project of building a memorial gymnasium to the memory of the late Eddie Plank. A splendid player and a splendid gentleman was Eddie. He was known intimately to most members of this association and was honored by all that knew him. He gave many of his best years to baseball and that the game is today on such a high plane is due in no little degree to the efforts of Eddie Plank and his contemporary players. This association, through its president, therefore desires to become a real part of this memorial movement and in endorsing the work wishes it every success."

$10,000 STOLEN

(Continued from First Page) If Mr. Brandt has a list of the makers of the notes he can notify each of them of the theft and ask them to have payment stopped, it is said.

Mr. Brandt resides next door to the warehouse and when he arose this morning he noticed that the rear window was broken. Thinking that his place had been entered and some flour or feed taken as had been done before he ate breakfast before going to his place of business.

He was astonished when he saw that the inner doors of his safe had been forced and that all apparently negotiable securities were missing.

Mr. Brandt's warehouse stands at the corner of Railroad and Locust streets, and on another corner of that intersection is the warehouse of Denton Myers. After the alarm was spread about the robbery at Brandt's warehouse, discovery was made that Myers' warehouse also had been broken into during the night. A checkup at the latter place revealed that nothing was stolen.

The front door of Mr. Myers' warehouse was forced by the robbers in gaining entrance there.

According to Mr. Brandt, he closed his warehouse between 7 and 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, and retired shortly after 10 o'clock. He heard no sounds from the warehouse during the night, nor were his suspicions aroused by strangers in that neighborhood on Tuesday.

It is considered doubtful that, if the robbers were persons residing in or near East Berlin, any effort will be made to dispose of the bank stock or the promissory notes, because of the danger of detection.

Th East Berlin bank, it is stated, is empowered to issue new certificates of stock for that stolen from Mr. Brandt, after customary notice is given through newspaper advertisements. Stoppage of payment on the promissory notes by the makers will cut off that avenue for their disposition and negotiation.

Brown Of Harvard Movie At Strand

A gentleman's agreement to eat no pies, cakes, rich pastries, and to smoke no cigarettes until the picture was finished was drawn up by Jack Pickford, William Haines, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and Guinn Williams of the cast of "Brown of Harvard," coming to the Strand Theatre today and tomorrow, when that picture was in production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Haines, Bushman and Williams play stars of the Harvard team, and as the football scenes were actually played by them, they could not look like weaklings beside the real football squad.

Incidentally, the entire University of Southern California football squad was used for the football scenes in "Brown of Harvard," and Haines, Bushman and Williams were in perfect physical trim, having been in training for several weeks before beginning the picture.

The football scenes were photographed in the Los Angeles Coliseum, with long shots of last year's Yale-Harvard game incorporated in the production. These were secured by director Jack Conway, who went east expressly to secure actual shots of the game, and atmospheric shots of the huge crowds that attended the game.

BANKS OF COUNTY SHOW PROSPERITY

Total Resources of All Institutions Amount to $16,700,000, Tabulations Show.

Figures compiled for all of the sixteen banks of Adams county and assembled show that the total resources of the institutions amount to more than $16,700,000 the highest figure that they have ever attained. The data was compiled from the most recent statements of the various institutions as given, following a recent call from the comptroller of the currency. Bankers claim that the large total reflects the prosperity of the county and the gradual education of people to use the banks for small as well as large accounts.

The assembled data shows that the Gettysburg National bank, the oldest in the county, is also the largest, for it leads all the others both in resources and deposits, the former amounting to $2,743,538, while deposits are $2,132,337.

The Littlestown National Bank and the Littlestown Savings institution follow in second and third place with regard to deposits, while the First National bank of Gettysburg is fourth in deposits and second in total resources. The Gettysburg National leads its nearest competitor in deposits by more than a half million.

It is said to be the first time that the county figures have been so completely compiled and analyzed. All of the banks are showing progress and the lively competition among them has served to stimulate trade for all. They range from the small $25,000 banks, scattered in the smaller towns, to the larger institutions with capital of $150,000 each.

MATT MOORE IS IN GOOD COMEDY

Even without Matt Moore to play the leading role, "His Majesty Bunker Bean" would still have been a good comedy because it has one of the best screen stories of a decade. But with Matt Moore it is perfect. Never has this youngest of the Moore brothers appeared to such advantage as in this picture at the Majestic Theatre tonight.

Bunker Bean is a timid clerk who becomes convinced by two charlatans that he is the reincarnation of Napoleon and later of an Egyptian King. Remember Matt Moore in the "Caveman"? Well this is even funnier and better from beginning to the end. Playing opposite him is Dorothy Devore and she is more charming than ever in the role of a flapper who thinks she knows it all and does. The remainder of the cast has also been carefully selected. In addition to this is offered another of the famous Buster Brown comedies, "Buster's Heart Beat," and another of the popular Krazy Kat cartoons.

Tomorrow Glenn Hunter in "The Broadway Boob" is offered for the patrons' select entertainment.

SOCIETY TO GIVE PROGRAM

$71,435 SPENT BY VARE IN PRIMARY

Pepper Files Expense Account of $2500; Governor Pinchot Expended $43,767.

(By Associated Press.) Harrisburg, June 2.—Congressman William S. Vare spent $71,435.80 in his successful primary campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, he reported today to the state bureau of elections. Senator George Wharton Pepper, whom he defeated, reported expenditures of $2,500, and Governor Pinchot, who ran third in the contest, spent $43,767.31.

Today is the last for the filing of candidates' expense accounts, but two weeks remain for the filing of committee accounts.

The Vare account showed expenditures of more than $21,000 for printing, more than $30,000 for letter writing and more than $12,000 for postage. Senator Pepper's $2,500 was consumed by the Pepper campaign committee.

Governor Pinchot reported that $2,000 of his expenditures was in the form of contributions to committees and some for postage and printing.

NORTHERN LIGHTS

(Continued from First Page) cording to the Associated Press, say that the Northern Lights have been known to show in a beam, although rarely. The last record of this, they say, was in 1840. Prof. C. B. Heineley, an astronomical authority, of York, also pronounced the beam of light to be a rare form of the Northern Lights.

There was no change in the shape of the streak with the exception that from the main, as seen here, there seemed to be a number of branches, or small beams of light that separated from the streak and shot off into space at different angles.

The major portion of the beam of light, however, did not change and showed no evidence of pulsation and the light, sharply defined earlier, slowly died out until at 10:30 o'clock an observer was not able to detect it.

The lights did not appear on the horizon, but in space, and the light streak was almost at zenith, stretching almost from horizon to horizon. The density of the air would prevent it from being seen at the horizon. The ray was about a degree and a half wide.

The phenomenon of the Northern Lights is caused by an electrical discharge into space which, in the rarified atmosphere which produces a condition of vacuum, causes the nitrogen particles in the air to glow.

Teacher Is Lauded

Dr. John B. Zinn, '05, head of the chemistry department at Gettysburg College, was the speaker of the evening, and voiced an appreciation of the association for Miss Cope's service. He said greatness lies not in the accumulation of money, but in service to mankind, and declared Miss Cope truly reached that greatness in giving thirty-one years to teaching, in which the best service can be rendered, for in that endeavor souls and lives are shaped. He presented the alumni gift to Miss Cope.

After the association's resolution was read, Miss Cope thanked the alumni and said that, although she would not be a teacher in the high Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Harry Crisswell, Lancaster, and Mrs. Charles Slothour, with whom Mrs. Miller made her home; also four grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Ellen C. Becker, Hanover, and one brother, Conrad Brodbeck, Seven Valleys.

The funeral was held Tuesday at 10 o'clock with services at the house and further obsequies in the Lutheran church, Abbottstown, the Rev. Paul Gladfelder, pastor of that church, officiated.

The pallbearers were John Hoffman, Henry Waltman, Heimer Hoover, Harry Lillich, Robert Moul and Lewis Wolf. Interment took place in the Lutheran cemetery, Abbottstown.

SERVICES FOR T. N. TRISH HELD

The funeral of Theodore N. Trish, who died Saturday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock at his home, 2 North street, Hanover, following an illness of one week, was held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock with services conducted at the house by the Rev. A. M. Hollinger, pastor of the West Manheim Lutheran church. The pallbearers were Edward Moul, Jonas Bankert, William Kemper and Edward Little. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mr. Trish is survived by his wife, who was Miss Ida Zepp, four sons, Addison, near Black Rock; Clinton, Midway; George and Paul, at home; two daughters, Miss Irene Trish, at home, and Mrs. Clair Sterner, Hanover; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Viola Strausbaugh, at home, and two sisters, Mrs. William Yingling, near Westminster, and Mrs. George Stauffer, Snyderburg, Maryland.

CORONACH WINS EPSOM DERBY

Brokerage Clerk Holds Ticket in Calcutta Sweepstakes, Winning $300,000.

Epsom, Eng., June 2.—Lord Woolavington's Coronach won the one hundred and forty-third renewal of the derby blue ribbon classic of British racing here today.

Robert Bishop, 50 year old department manager of a brokerage firm, won the $300,000 first prize in the Calcutta sweepstakes, but he retained only one-eighth of the ticket for himself.

He had sold half his share for about 7,000 pounds and later disposed of three-quarters of the remainder for an unannounced amount.

A London woman, Miss Farr, won about $150,000 in the stock exchange sweepstakes. She heard the news at a motion picture theatre and was overcome.

STOCKS SLUGGISH DURING MORNING

New York, June 2.—Stock prices moved within narrow and irregular limits at the opening of today's market, but reactionary tendencies predominated. The market appeared to be awaiting further light on the course of business before developing a definite trend.

Oils were in fairly better demand. Steel and rail shares were inclined to heaviness. Later brisk rallies were started in several specialties. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent.

BASEBALL MEN ENDORSE FUND

President of Writers' Association Pays Tribute to Leadership of Eddie Plank.

James M. Gould, president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, has heartily endorsed the $125,000 Eddie Plank Memorial Gymnasium project and has pledged the efforts of his organization as well as his own personal influence to the success of the movement.

This information is contained in a letter enclosing an endorsement from Mr. Gould to the secretary of the executive committee of the Plank Memorial committee. "I want to assure you that personally and officially I will do all I can to further the project of an Eddie Plank Memorial," wrote President Gould.

In addition to the endorsement and the pledge of cooperation by President Gould, every member of the Baseball Writers' Association of America is being urged by Mr. Gould to support the project wherever and whenever possible and to exert their influence to the utmost to assure the success of the movement.

The endorsement by President Gould follows:

"On this day it is eminently fitting that this association go on record as heartily endorsing the project of building a memorial gymnasium to the memory of the late Eddie Plank. A splendid player and a splendid gentleman was Eddie. He was known intimately to most members of this association and was honored by all that knew him. He gave many of his best years to baseball and that the game is today on such a high plane is due in no little degree to the efforts of Eddie Plank and his contemporary players. This association, through its president, therefore desires to become a real part of this memorial movement and in endorsing the work wishes it every success."

If Mr. Brandt has a list of the makers of the notes he can notify each of them of the theft and ask them to have payment stopped, it is said.

Mr. Brandt resides next door to the warehouse and when he arose this morning he noticed that the rear window was broken. Thinking that his place had been entered and some flour or feed taken as had been done before he ate breakfast before going to his place of business.

He was astonished when he saw that the inner doors of his safe had been forced and that all apparently negotiable securities were missing.

Mr. Brandt's warehouse stands at the corner of Railroad and Locust streets, and on another corner of that intersection is the warehouse of Denton Myers. After the alarm was spread about the robbery at Brandt's warehouse, discovery was made that Myers' warehouse also had been broken into during the night. A checkup at the latter place revealed that nothing was stolen.

The front door of Mr. Myers' warehouse was forced by the robbers in gaining entrance there.

According to Mr. Brandt, he closed his warehouse between 7 and 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, and retired shortly after 10 o'clock. He heard no sounds from the warehouse during the night, nor were his suspicions aroused by strangers in that neighborhood on Tuesday.

It is considered doubtful that, if the robbers were persons residing in or near East Berlin, any effort will be made to dispose of the bank stock or the promissory notes, because of the danger of detection.

Th East Berlin bank, it is stated, is empowered to issue new certificates of stock for that stolen from Mr. Brandt, after customary notice is given through newspaper advertisements. Stoppage of payment on the promissory notes by the makers will cut off that avenue for their disposition and negotiation.

Brown Of Harvard Movie At Strand

A gentleman's agreement to eat no pies, cakes, rich pastries, and to smoke no cigarettes until the picture was finished, was drawn up by Jack Pickford, William Haines, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and Guinn Williams of the cast of "Brown of Harvard," coming to the Strand Theatre today and tomorrow, when that picture was in production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Haines, Bushman and Williams play stars of the Harvard team, and as the football scenes were actually played by them, they could not look like weaklings beside the real football squad.

Incidentally, the entire University of Southern California football squad was used for the football scenes in "Brown of Harvard," and Haines, Bushman and Williams were in perfect physical trim, having been in training for several weeks before beginning the picture.

The football scenes were photographed in the Los Angeles Coliseum, with long shots of last year's Yale-Harvard game incorporated in the production. These were secured by director Jack Conway, who went east expressly to secure actual shots of the game, and atmospheric shots of the huge crowds that attended the game.

BANKS OF COUNTY SHOW PROSPERITY

Total Resources of All Institutions Amount to $16,700,000, Tabulations Show.

Figures compiled for all of the sixteen banks of Adams county and assembled show that the total resources of the institutions amount to more than $16,700,000 the highest figure that they have ever attained. The data was compiled from the most recent statements of the various institutions as given, following a recent call from the comptroller of the currency. Bankers claim that the large total reflects the prosperity of the county and the gradual education of people to use the banks for small as well as large accounts.

The assembled data shows that the Gettysburg National bank, the oldest in the county, is also the largest, for it leads all the others both in resources and deposits, the former amounting to $2,743,538, while deposits are $2,132,337.

The Littlestown National Bank and the Littlestown Savings institution follow in second and third place with regard to deposits, while the First National bank of Gettysburg is fourth in deposits and second in total resources. The Gettysburg National leads its nearest competitor in deposits by more than a half million.

It is said to be the first time that the county figures have been so completely compiled and analyzed. All of the banks are showing progress and the lively competition among them has served to stimulate trade for all. They range from the small $25,000 banks, scattered in the smaller towns, to the larger institutions with capital of $150,000 each.

MATT MOORE IS IN GOOD COMEDY

Even without Matt Moore to play the leading role, "His Majesty Bunker Bean" would still have been a good comedy because it has one of the best screen stories of a decade. But with Matt Moore it is perfect. Never has this youngest of the Moore brothers appeared to such advantage as in this picture at the Majestic Theatre tonight.

Bunker Bean is a timid clerk who becomes convinced by two charlatans that he is the reincarnation of Napoleon and later of an Egyptian King. Remember Matt Moore in the "Cayeman"? Well this is even funnier and better from beginning to the end. Playing opposite him is Dorothy Devore and she is more charming than ever in the role of a flapper who thinks she knows it all and does. The remainder of the cast has also been carefully selected. In addition to this is offered another of the famous Buster Brown comedies, Buster's Heart Beat, and another of the popular Krazy Kat Kartoons.

SOCIETY TO GIVE PROGRAM

The Missionary Society of the Wenksville Methodist Episcopal church will present a program on Sunday evening, June 6, at 7:30 o'clock. The society will be assisted by a male quartet and other talent from Bendersville. The meeting will be open to the public.

$71,435 SPENT BY VARE IN PRIMARY

Pepper Files Expense Account of $2500; Governor Pinchot Expended $43,767.

(By Associated Press.)
Harrisburg, June 2.—Congressman William S. Vare spent $71,435.80 in his successful primary campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, he reported today to the state bureau of elections. Senator George Wharton Pepper, whom he defeated, reported expenditures of $2,500, and Governor Pinchot, who ran third in the contest, spent $43,767.31.

Today is the last for the filing of candidates' expense accounts, but two weeks remain for the filing of committee accounts.

The Vare account showed expenditures of more than $21,000 for printing, more than $30,000 for letter writing and more than $12,000 for postage. Senator Pepper's $2,500 was consumed by the Pepper campaign committee.

Governor Pinchot reported that $2,000 of his expenditures was in the form of contributions to committees and some for postage and printing.

cording to the Associated Press, say that the Northern Lights have been known to show in a beam, although rarely. The last record of this, they say, was in 1840. Prof. C. B. Heineley, an astronomical authority, of York, also pronounced the beam of light to be a rare form of the Northern Lights.

There was no change in the shape of the streak with the exception that, from the main, as seen here, there seemed to be a number of branches, or small beams of light that separated from the streak and shot off into space at different angles.

The major portion of the beam of light, however, did not change and showed no evidence of pulsation and the light, sharply defined earlier, slowly died out until at 10:30 o'clock an observer was not able to detect it.

The lights did not appear on the horizon, but in space, and the light streak was almost at zenith, stretching almost from horizon to horizon. The density of the air would prevent it from being seen at the horizon. The ray was about a degree and a half wide.

The phenomenon of the Northern Lights is caused by an electrical discharge into space which, in the rarified atmosphere which produces a condition of vacuum, causes the nitrogen particles in the air to glow.

Dr. John B. Zinn, '05, head of the chemistry department at Gettysburg College, was the speaker of the evening, and voiced an appreciation of the association for Miss Cope's service. He said greatness lies not in the accumulation of money, but in service to mankind, and declared Miss Cope truly reached that greatness in giving thirty-one years to teaching, in which the best service can be rendered, for in that endeavor souls and lives are shaped. He presented the alumni gift to Miss Cope.

After the association's resolution was read, Miss Cope thanked the alumni and said that, although she would not be a teacher in the high

SATAN IN SABLES

"Satan in Sables" with Lowell Sherman is a picturization of this novel

SYNOPSIS

Prince Michael Yervedoff, wealthy Russian noble, gives a wild party in his Paris apartment, even inviting in some street revellers, chiefly because Colette, their pretty leader, attracts his master-philanderer's eye. Dolores, one of Michael's cast-offs, threatens revenge. Michael's Aunt, Grand Duchess Sophia, stops in to leave Paul, Michael's younger brother, a visit. Michael is devoted to the boyish, unsophisticated Paul, and has always shielded him. Colette takes "French leave," while Michael admits his interest in her to his valet friends.

"But doesn't that come to all of us at some time? Don't we all have to struggle for our ideals, varied as they may be? She is no different than the rest of us. Freddy, Armand, you, I—all have to make the same fight in some form or shape. Of course, a poor girl's struggle is the hardest."

"And for what ideal are you struggling so manfully—or rather, womanfully—now, may I ask?" Michael was faintly cynical.

"My ideal at the present time," Nilton said with a brazen smile, "is a fur coat that I saw in a shop this afternoon—and the mental struggle to crush my common sense, which tells me that I cannot afford to buy it, is tremendous. Something seems to tell me that I shall realize my ideal however, even at the expense of refusing to listen to stern, hard facts!"

"Yes, your struggle must be tremendous and I can deeply sympathize with you," laughed Michael coolly as the last strains of the waltz died away and the flow of the dance ceased like congealing cake frosting.

Meanwhile, Paul had not retired as Michael thought. Instead, he had gone into the library, drawn by curiosity as to whether the girl with whom he had battled upon his arrival was still there.

The guarded radiance of a floor lamp had revealed her still sitting by the window staring out upon the moon-washed streets.

"Mademoiselle," Paul said timidly walking over to her, "how delighted I am that you are still here. But why are you not in the ballroom? The noise indicates the people there are enjoying themselves without restraint; but then, to give happiness to others seems to be one of my brother's habits."

"Your brother?" Dolores stared hard at him.

"Why, yes, my brother Michael—surely you know him?"

"Yes—I know him," she said slowly, "but to tell you the truth, Monsieur Paul, for I know that is your name—I was not feeling very well and was resting here for a few moments before leaving for home. The moonlight entranced me so that those moments have multiplied. I feel much better now, though," she added, with a subtle, graceful smile.

"Your presence, Monsieur, seems to be an excellent tonic!" She tapped her lips with her fan. So this boy, who flushed with unsophisticated pleasure at her compliment, was Paul, whom Michael idolized. She remembered how Michael always had excluded him carefully from the gay parties; how he had lavished affection upon him.

Michael had often told her, "One tiler in the family is enough and little Paul will not be a second if I can help it!"

Now, through some strange working of fate, Dolores, ruthlessly discarded by Michael, was sitting in his library with this brother—who was the one vulnerable spot in Michael's life, the weak heel of the Achilles of Parisian society—at her feminine mercy. The irony of the situation amused her, and quickly determined her upon a course of action.

Stores to Close Thursday Afternoons During Summer

Gettysburg Merchants Will Follow Usual Custom of Giving Employees a Half Holiday During Warm Months

Beginning tomorrow, June third, we, the undersigned merchants of Gettysburg, will close our stores every Thursday at twelve o'clock noon and remain closed the remainder of each Thursday.

This action is agreed to in order to give our clerks and other workers a half holiday during sultry weather of the summer. We feel that in giving them this rest, they will be better able to give our customers and friends better service during the hours our stores are open for business, particularly on Saturdays, when the rural folk must necessarily do most of their buying.

We feel confident this action will meet with the hearty approval of everybody.

Now, through some strange working of fate, Dolores, ruthlessly discarded by Michael, was sitting in his library with this brother—who was the one vulnerable spot in Michael's life, the weak heel of the Achilles of Parisian society—at her feminine mercy. The irony of the situation amused her, and quickly determined her upon a course of action.

—a hard, brilliant plan. Michael could blame nobody but himself for what the future might bring forth. He thought that the comedy was ended; but as she had already threatened, it was not the close of the play—only the beginning of another act!

"This music is a captivating accompaniment to our meeting, Mademoiselle," blurted Paul as melodious strains came from the ballroom. Then, timidly, crudely hopeful, "I am sorry that you are feeling indisposed, for I might have begged the pleasure of a private dance with you in this little salon of our own!"

"If you will join me, Monsieur," she replied, "a dance amidst such surroundings would be in itself a delightful cure for my indisposition! But, first—a glass of wine!"

In answer to Paul's summons a servant brought champagne.

"To you, Mademoiselle," Paul cried, touching goblets with her, "and to the pleasure of our first dance together. May it be the forerunner of many!"

"A strange situation for you, Monsieur," Dolores said archly, "proposing a toast to a lady whom you have never seen before, and whose name you do not even know!"

"Don't say a strange situation. Say, rather, that it is a most unexpected and charming surprise. Surely, you will relieve my suspense and tell me your name?"

The same package of coquetry that constituted Michael's chief charm revealed itself in his brother, and Dolores smiled sadly. Yes, the same gracious charm was there—but would the same cynicism and carelessness eventually appear? For what reason had Michael turned so against her? Just because he had grown surfeited, and evidently expected her to tire at exactly the same time? Had he expected her to shake hands and part the best of friends, as he had more than once hinted? Should romance mean no more than that to a passionate woman? A wave of bitterness surged over her.

"Very well, Michael," she thought bitterly to herself, "our little affair is dead, then, and past, but a new one will start in which you won't be a participant! Not at first, at least, though it may develop into the grimmest tragedy of your life."

"You have not answered my question," said Paul, suddenly interrupting the girl's reflections.

"I ask your pardon, Monsieur, but I was thinking. My name? Well, if your curiosity must be appeased, it is Dolores Sierra. She rose and smiled coquettishly.

"And now—in spite of many protestations and appeals, I have kept the next dance for you."

"And I am flattered that out of the vast crowd of your admirers here"—Paul gestured toward the shimmering moonbeams—"I should be the lucky recipient of your favor."

He eagerly shifted a table and some chairs, clearing a small space. The intervening walls softened the orchestral music to subdued tones that created an amorous atmosphere for the two dancers in the library. In common outwardly they typified youth as they glided about, but their spirits were widely apart. Paul's was the happy, carefree abandon that had never confronted any obstacles; while Dolores, though outwardly possessing the same freshness and charm was at heart a bitter and long-disillusioned woman of easy virtue.

"You dance divinely, Mademoiselle," he murmured huskily, "but that can be no news to you."

"There isn't a woman in this world, Monsieur, who has ever wearied of a compliment, especially if it is sincere."

Suddenly Dolores grew deathly pale and a hunted look dulled her eyes as she caught sight of Michael standing in the doorway. All the cruelty of which this master-philanderer was capable was depicted in his face.

Slowly, Dolores' glance changed to one of defiance. Forcing a bland carelessness, she ignored Michael's presence.

"Ah, my dear friend," she said to Paul, and seemed to move a little closer to him. "You are right. This evening is divine."

Michael waited until they had finished their dance. Then he went brusquely to Paul and put a hand on his shoulder.

"I thought you had retired and I was just going up to your room. I never dreamed that you were having a little party of your own." Michael strove to conceal the mingled worry and fury in his heart.

"—And a most enjoyable one, too," Paul enthused. "I prevailed on Mademoiselle Dolores to remain, and never have I so enjoyed a dance!" Paul's face was flushed, his eyes sparkling with unusual brilliancy; warm with his own emotions he failed to note the anger in his brother's face.

Stores to Close Thursday Afternoons During Summer

Gettysburg Merchants Will Follow Usual Custom of Giving Employees a Half Holiday During Warm Months

Beginning tomorrow, June third, we, the undersigned merchants of Gettysburg, will close our stores every Thursday at twelve o'clock noon and remain closed the remainder of each Thursday.

This action is agreed to in order to give our clerks and other workers a half holiday during sultry weather of the summer. We feel that in giving them this rest, they will be better able to give our customers and friends better service during the hours our stores are open for business, particularly on Saturdays, when the rural folk must necessarily do most of their buying.

We feel confident this action will meet with the hearty approval of everybody.

Little Jack Rabbit

Shall we put our heads close together, Little Reader, and ponder how the last story ended? I declare, sometimes I must straighten my Memory Cap in order to remember how and where I left off. By the way, my Memory Cap has a pink tassel. Quite pretty for so useful a head covering!

And now that I've given the tassel a twist,
And wound the alarm clock I wear on my wrist,
And smiled at dear "Remmy," my faithful machine,
I remember distinctly the Rabbitland scene.

Yes, Professor Jim Crow had just arrived in time to read a few words about Humming Birds from his wonderful Wisdom Book, to the little rabbits, when all of a sudden the bunny boy spied Benjamin Bat hanging from a twig. He looked so like a rumpled, reddish-brown leaf that the little rabbit at first had been fooled. Yes, he had actually thought up to this moment that a last year's leaf was still clinging to the bough.

"Well, look who's here," laughed Benjamin Bat. "Two good friends, I might say three," turning his little snapping eyes toward Professor Jim Crow, his Wisdom Book held firmly under his right wing.

"Did we wake you?" asked the old bird, politely.

"Maybe and perhaps," answered Benjamin Bat. "I sleep pretty much all day, for as soon as it grows dusk I'm off on a hunting trip."

"Doesn't the sunlight bother your eyes?" asked the little rabbit.

"Not in the least," answered the little bat, leaning out toward a shaft of sunlight. "Not in the least. I can fly as well by day as by night."

"Well, we must be hopping along," said Uncle Lucky, and away he and his bunny nephew went, clipperty clip, lipperty lip towards the Pleasant Pasture. Pretty soon, not so very long, they reached the Old Stone

Fence that edged the woods when, all of a sudden, just like that a little voice whispered,

"Mr. Wicked Wolf's hiding behind a tree,
Watching the sheep on the grassy lea.
Be careful, be cautious what you do,
I think he now is looking at you."

"Dear, dear, dearest me," cried the old gentleman rabbit under his breath. But he didn't lose his head, on which rested his precious old wedding stove-pipe hat. No, not for a minute. "Did you hear the little voice?" he whispered to the bunny boy. "Come, let us hop right over the fence. We'll be safer out in the open than here in the Shady Forest," and quick as a wink he and the little rabbit hopped over the piled-up stones, landing on the other side right up close to Mr. Ram, who was acting as a sentinel for his flock of sheep.

Mr. Wolf is hiding in the forest.

"Goodness me, I didn't see you," gasped Uncle Lucky.

"Mr. Wicked Wolf is hiding in the forest," whispered the little rabbit, standing up on tiptoe to be in reach of Mr. Ram's ear.

Quick as a wink Mr. Ram stamped his feet on the ground and gave a sort of whistle, and the next minute all the sheep ran together in a circle, with the mothers and sisters inside and the older brothers and fathers on the outside. And evening before the two little rabbits could ask a question, they were safe inside the circle close to the pretty woolly lambs.

"Don't be afraid," said the big ram after arranging on the outer rim of the circle all his strong brothers, with their strong horns pointing outward like spears, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Inside the Now

People didn't know about things in the Dark Ages. They didn't know what was in lightning, mines, trees, air, that with a little ingenuity would make an electric light, a watch, a high-grade soap, a radio. They didn't know how to go about to know things. They didn't have many things worth while to know.

Today you have countless conveniences. You have all the facts you need to get hold of these conveniences. You have advertisements. Advertisements tell you frankly of wonders you can buy, where to buy them, how to recognize them, how to use them, how much to pay. By reading advertisements you can know what they will do for you before you spend one cent. How that lubricant will act in your own car. How that electric stove will lighten work in your own kitchen. Advertisements in The Gettysburg Times spread things before you so conveniently that almost by reaching out—you have them! You find them in any better store. Their prices low, because advertisements urge their use by thousands. Their values honest, because they are advertised as they are. The best you can buy, because what is widely advertised is what has survived harsh public test.

Don't let the Dark Ages touch any portion of your life.
Use the advertisements. They surround you with Now.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FATHER TO SON

J. D. TAYLOR, a reader of these Talks, sends me an interesting clipping from New Orleans.

John S. Stevenson, a University of Pennsylvania graduate and a World War veteran, aged 36, died under an operation in New Jersey.

"Among his papers were letters," says the Associated Press, "written to his son, counselling him in the way he should go, with instructions to have one letter delivered each September on the son's birthday. The letters were prepared for the respective ages at which they should be received by the boy."

There were letters sufficient to be delivered to the boy until he would be matured and ready for the serious business of life. The first one was read to him on his fifth birthday.

I am certain that that boy will carry the love of his father in his heart throughout a useful life. And when that boy has learned a little of the stuff behind this very strange existence of ours, he will value this fine and beautiful heritage left him all the more.

Some men leave gold to their sons—and this gold all too often turns to that which is worse than mud. But where love is left, there is also sure to be left something that the years turn into eternal gold.

In the most beautiful talk that Jesus ever delivered, he said: "My love I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled."

If you carry enough love around in your heart it crowds out all the troubles, all the worries and all the disappointments.

Yes, he had actually thought up to this moment that a last year's leaf was still clinging to the bough.

"Well, look who's here," laughed Benjamin Bat. "Two good friends, I might say three," turning his little snapping eyes toward Professor Jim Crow, his Wisdom Book held firmly under his right wing.

"Did we wake you?" asked the old bird, politely.

"Maybe and perhaps," answered Benjamin Bat. "I sleep pretty much all day, for as soon as it grows dusk I'm off on a hunting trip."

"Doesn't the sunlight bother your eyes?" asked the little rabbit.

"Not in the least," answered the little bat, leaning out toward a shaft of sunlight. "Not in the least. I can fly as well by day as by night."

"Well, we must be hopping along," said Uncle Lucky, and away he and his bunny nephew went, clipperty clip, lipperty lip towards the Pleasant Pasture. Pretty soon, not so very long, they reached the Old Stone over the piled-up stones, landing on the other side right up close to Mr. Ram, who was acting as a sentinel for his flock of sheep.

"Goodness me, I didn't see you," gasped Uncle Lucky.

"Mr. Wicked Wolf is hiding in the forest," whispered the little rabbit, standing up on tiptoe to be in reach of Mr. Ram's ear.

Quick as a wink Mr. Ram stamped his feet on the ground and gave a sort of whistle, and the next minute all the sheep ran together in a circle, with the mothers and sisters inside and the older brothers and fathers on the outside. And evening before the two little rabbits could ask a question, they were safe inside the circle close to the pretty woolly lambs.

"Don't be afraid," said the big ram after arranging on the outer rim of the circle all his strong brothers, with their strong horns pointing outward like spears, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Lots of Eats and Music

Inside the Now

People didn't know about things in the Dark Ages. They didn't know what was in lightning, mines, trees, air, that with a little ingenuity would make an electric light, a watch, a high-grade soap, a radio. They didn't know how to go about to know things. They didn't have many things worth while to know.

Today you have countless conveniences. You have all the facts you need to get hold of these conveniences. You have advertisements. Advertisements tell you frankly of wonders you can buy, where to buy them, how to recognize them, how to use them, how much to pay. By reading advertisements you can know what they will do for you before you spend one cent. How that lubricant will act in your own car. How that electric stove will lighten work in your own kitchen. Advertisements in The Gettysburg Times spread things before you so conveniently that almost by reaching out—you have them! You find them in any better store. Their prices low, because advertisements urge their use by thousands. Their values honest, because they are advertised as they are. The best you can buy, because what is widely advertised is what has survived harsh public test.

Don't let the Dark Ages touch any portion of your life.
Use the advertisements. They surround
you with Now.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FATHER TO SON

J. D. TAYLOR, a reader of these Talks, sends me an interesting clipping from New Orleans.

John S. Stevenson, a University of Pennsylvania graduate and a World War veteran, aged 36, died under an operation in New Jersey.

"Among his papers were letters," says the Associated Press, "written to his son, counselling him in the way he should go, with instructions to have one letter delivered each September on the son's birthday. The letters were prepared for the respective ages at which they should be received by the boy."

There were letters sufficient to be delivered to the boy until he would be matured and ready for the serious business of life. The first one was read to him on his fifth birthday.

I am certain that that boy will carry the love of his father in his heart throughout a useful life. And when that boy has learned a little of the stuff behind this very strange existence of ours, he will value this fine and beautiful heritage left him all the more.

Some men leave gold to their sons—and this gold all too often turns to that which is worse than mud. But where love is left, there is also sure to be left something that the years turn into eternal gold.

In the most beautiful talk that Jesus ever delivered, he said: "My love I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled."

If you carry enough love around in your heart it crowds out all the troubles, all the worries and all the disappointments.

LITTLESTOWN

Littlestown.—The annual Memorial Day services were conducted at Littlestown Monday afternoon, being featured by a parade at 2 o'clock, and the rendition of a program in Mt. Carmel cemetery. The procession formed at the P. O. S. of A. hall, East King street, with Chief Marshal John Robinson and his aide, W. A. Crabbs, in charge. The route lay down South Queen street to the cemetery. The Littlestown band led the marchers. The Hoffman Orphanage boy scouts and many pupils of both public and parochial schools with their teachers were in line, as well as a few Civil War veterans, the chief burgess, members of borough council and other officials and the various pastors in automobiles, and representatives of lodges.

The Rev. Earl G. Kline acted as master of ceremonies at Mt. Carmel. The orator of the day was Prof.

Horse Stealing Case Settled

Horse trading frequently may have proved disastrous for one of the traders but a trade in Columbia county led to a charge of horse stealing, the first case of its kind in the county in more than 12 years.

A grand jury returned an indictment on this charge against Clyde Lossell, of Pine township, but when the case was called for trial the district attorney announced it had been settled out of court. Counsel for Lossell said the action had ended when his client and Samuel Hower, the prosecutor, traded back the horses involved.

LITTLESTOWN

Littlestown.—The annual Memorial Day services were conducted at Littlestown Monday afternoon, being featured by a parade at 2 o'clock, and the rendition of a program in Mt. Carmel cemetery. The procession formed at the P. O. S. of A. hall, East King street, with Chief Marshal John Robinson and his aide, W. A. Crabbs, in charge. The route lay down South Queen street to the cemetery. The Littlestown band led the marchers. The Hoffman Orphanage boy scouts and many pupils of both public and parochial schools with their teachers were in line, as well as a few Civil War veterans, the chief burgess, members of borough council and other officials and the various pastors in automobiles, and representatives of lodges.

The Rev. Earl G. Kline acted as master of ceremonies at Mt. Carmel. The orator of the day was Prof.

Horse Stealing Case Settled

Horse trading frequently may have proved disastrous for one of the traders but a trade in Columbia county led to a charge of horse stealing, the first case of its kind in the county in more than 12 years.

A grand jury returned an indictment on this charge against Clyde Lossell, of Pine township, but when the case was called for trial the district attorney announced it had been settled out of court. Counsel for Lossell said the action had ended when his client and Samuel Hower, the prosecutor, traded back the horses involved.

CAN'T TALK ENOUGH

"I had gall stones for 14 years and suffered severely from gas, colic and indigestion. Doctors wanted me to go to the hospital, but I took MAY'S instead, and am now feeling fine and better than I ever did. I can't talk enough about this remedy." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if
Bladder Boths or Back
Hurts.

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.
The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.
Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. Adv.

NEW OXFORD

New Oxford.—Mrs. A. M. Altvater and two children, Baltimore, spent Sunday here with Mrs. A. P. Wagner. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wolf, Elymire, spent several days here with friends. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker, Baltimore, spent Monday here with the latter's father, George Klinge. Lehr Livingston, Harrisburg, spent several days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Livingston. Mr. and Mrs. George Trayer and two children, Williamsport, spent several days here with Mr. and Mrs. N. Lingg. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Miller, State College, spent several days here with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Sterner spent several days in Delaware. Rev. Paul Weaver, Mt. Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. John Weaver, Philadelphia, spent several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Weaver, Hanover street. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weaver and family, York; George Feltz, Sr., and Miss Emma Feltz spent Monday here with James Weaver and family. George Clippinger, Pittsburgh, spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yeager.

The Memorial Day parade moved at 5 o'clock Monday. A large crowd was in town to witness it. Rev. J. W. Morris gave the oration. Rev. George F. Sheffer offered prayer at the square. At retreat George Feltz, Sr., Civil War veteran; George Smith, of the Spanish American War, and John Kaiser, World War veteran, lowered the flag in the square. There were 40 members of the York Sons of Veterans' camp in the parade, guests of the local camp of Sons of Veterans No. 60. George Sheely was marshal.

New Oxford town council met at its monthly session Tuesday evening. All members were present except Mr. Klinge. Council decided to repair part of High street from Hanover to Bolton streets, 14 feet wide, with stone and tarvia. At the same time several other streets will be repaired. The work will start about June 15 by the State Highway Department. Carlisle street citizens asked council to oil said street the full width. Council had decided to oil 16 feet of the street, but agreed to oil the full width if the citizens on said street would pay for the additional width. The street committee was ordered to repair several crossings and to have gutters opened at once. Large corrugated pipes were ordered put down at several places to take care of the surface water. Council ordered the following bills paid: Henry Volman, $30.45; Beals Restaurant, $2.20; Amos Sponseller, $48.90; F. B. Sellers, $4.17; H. S. Sheetz, $13.48; Hanover Light Company, $182.24; Charles Paxton, $97.50; Gilbert & Son, $18.32; Edgar Auken, $5.00; George Steffon, $15.00; Fitz Water Wheel Company, $201.15; R. M. Wolf, $4.95; James Herman, $18.75; John C. Myers, $7.20.

New Oxford Fire Company will hold its monthly meeting this evening. G. T. Topper and force of men are painting all the buildings at the Adams county almshouse.

Trust Everybody

Respect for the other man's rights apparently is practiced to a large degree in New Bloomfield, the county seat of Perry county. A traveller having business with a county official visited the court house during the noon hour. Office after office was entered and not a person was about though each office, even the county treasurer's, was wide open. One o'clock approached and the employees began to return—and business went on as usual.

LIVES ON FARM IN OKLAHOMA

Happy Woman Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for endurance in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 396, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says, 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Ask your neighbor.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if
Bladder Boths or Back
Hurts.

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. Adv.

The Memorial Day parade moved at 5 o'clock Monday. A large crowd was in town to witness it. Rev. J. W. Morris gave the oration. Rev. George E. Sheffer offered prayer at the square. At retreat George Felty, Sr., Civil War veteran; George Smith, of the Spanish American War, and John Kaiser, World War veteran, lowered the flag in the square. There were 40 members of the York Sons of Veterans' camp in the parade, guests of the local camp of Sons of Veterans No. 60. George Sheely was marshal.

New Oxford town council met at its monthly session Tuesday evening. All members were present except Mr. Klinge. Council decided to repair part of High street from Hanover to Bolton streets, 14 feet wide, with stone and tarvia. At the same time several other streets will be repaired. The work will start about June 15 by the State Highway Department. Carlisle street citizens asked council to oil said street the full width. Council had decided to oil 16 feet of the street, but agreed to oil the full width if the citizens on said street would pay for the additional width. The street committee was ordered to repair several crossings and to have gutters opened at once. Large corrugated pipes were ordered put down at several places to take care of the surface water. Council ordered the following bills paid: Henry Volman, $30.45; Beals Restaurant, $3.20; Amos

Trust Everybody

Respect for the other man's rights apparently is practiced to a large degree in New Bloomfield, the county seat of Perry county. A traveller having business with a county official visited the court house during the noon hour. Office after office was entered and not a person was about though each office, even the county treasurer's, was wide open. One o'clock approached and the employees began to return—and business went on as usual.

First Photo of End of Norge's Polar Flight

This shows the Norge being dismantled after landing at Teller, Alaska, completing the first transpolar flight. The natives in the foreground were much interested in Rold Amundsen's dirigible, the first they had ever seen. This picture was rushed to San Francisco with the aid of fast airplanes and transmitted across the continent by the telephoto process. (Copyright International Newsreel.)

Happy Woman Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 336, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Ask your neighbor.
